Our vineyard in Apala is about 60 years old, and the grapes from these old vines produce wines of remarkable color and intensity. The name Apalita is derived from an old Aztec word meaning "small" and means "the place of Apala". We wanted to emphasize Apala, because it is one of Chile's premier areas for the production of red wines, something attested to by the quality of this wine.

Made solely from Carmener, an old French variety now found only in Chile, it has a superb color, a spicy, plumy nose and ripe, berryish fruit palate. In order to preserve as much of this wonderful fruit as possible, the wine was bottled in a special way, without prior to bottling. As a result, it may throw a light, harmless sediment.
